At checkout

In-store purchases can be completed as either credit or debit transactions. Some merchants may offer you a choice.

Restaurants

The card value must be sufficient to cover the purchase amount, taxes and gratuity or it may decline.
Restaurants often obtain authorization greater than the total bill (typically 20%).

Hotels

Most, if not all hotels require a credit card to book a room. However, they will not charge your credit card yet. Some hotels accept prepaid cards for booking while some do not.
(Please contact your hotel directly for specific requirements.)

Split transactions

To use your card on a purchase greater than the available balance, notify the cashier that you want to split the transaction. Then, provide another form of payment for the remaining differences.
(Some merchants may not support split transactions.)

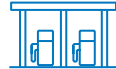

Online transactions

Your card must be registered at usbankrewardscard.com to use your card for online purchases.

Domestic usage

Use your card anywhere Visa® debit is accepted in the United States.

Fuel stations

To purchase fuel, pay inside at the station.
